

JKBOSE 2026

CLASS 11TH

GRAMMAR

LECTURE-2

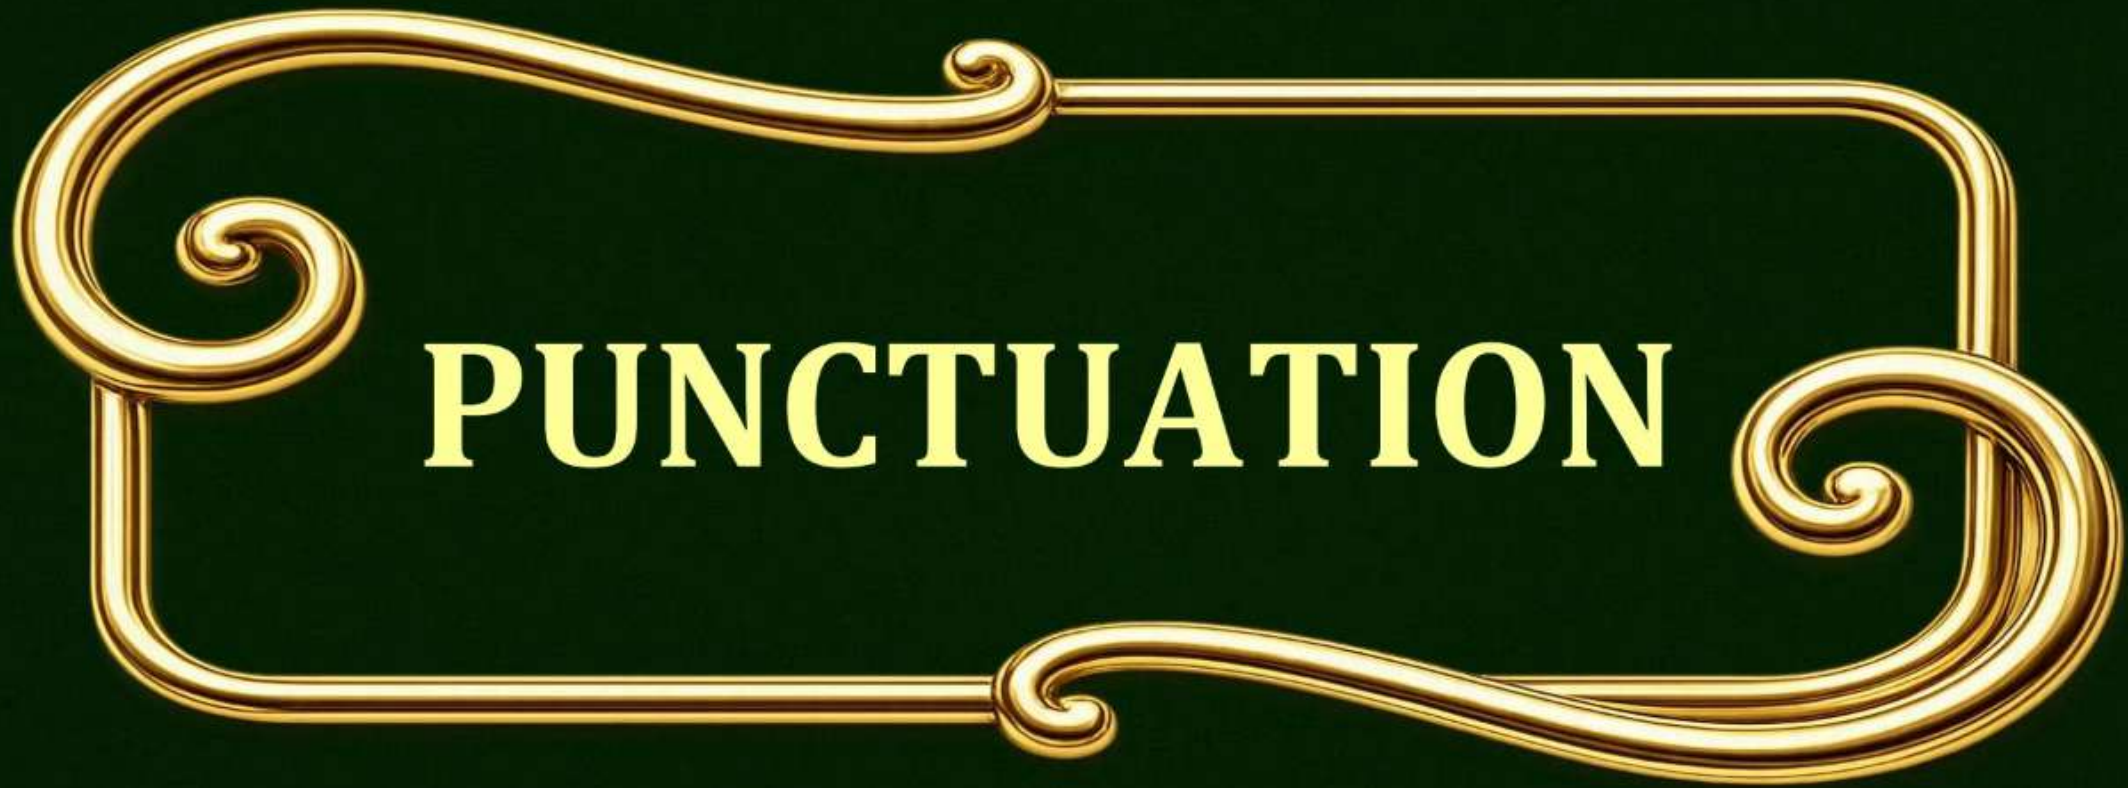

ENGLISH

HUSSAIN SIR

Topics To Covered

- 1 Punctuation
- 2 Conjunction
- 3 Preposition
- 4
- 5
- 6

A decorative gold-colored frame with ornate scrollwork on the left and right sides, enclosing the word 'PUNCTUATION'.

PUNCTUATION

Punctuation

- Punctuation marks are used in writing to separate sentences and parts of sentences and clarify the meaning of the sentence.
- Punctuation helps to separate different elements from each other or to make writing more clear.
- Punctuation is the tool that allows us to organize our thoughts and make it easier to review and share our thoughts.

Different Punctuation Marks

- Full Stop (.) period
- Comma (,)
- Colon (:)
- Semi colon (;)
- Question Mark (?)
- Exclamation (!)
- Apostrophe (')
- Quotation mark (" ")
- Dash (–)
- Parentheses ()
- Ellipsis (...)
- Slash (\)

Terminal Punctuation Marks

Terminal Punctuation marks are used to end sentences. There are three Terminal Punctuation Marks.

Full Stop/Period (.)

Question Mark (?)

Exclamation Mark (!)

NEET → Acronyms

P.W.

Dr.

Prof.

Uses of Full Stop

(i) Full stops end declarative sentences and requests or mild commands.

Declarative: His name is Ali.

Request or Mild Command: Please be sure to tell her I am coming.

(ii) Full Stops are used to end most abbreviations except for acronyms and abbreviations which are pronounced.

N.G.O. (American English) NGO (British English)

Acronyms: SARRC, NATO.

Terminal Punctuation Marks

- (iii) If a sentence ends with an abbreviation, no additional period is needed. If the sentence requires a question mark or exclamation point, one may be added after the period.

Incorrect: I know the full form of N.G.O.. ✗
(Second period at end not needed)

Correct: I know the full form of N.G.O. ✓✓

Correct: Do you know the full form of N.G.O.? ✗

"I don't get it?"

- (iv) A period always comes before a closing quotation mark.

Incorrect: George said, "I don't get it".

Correct: George said, "I don't get it."

Question Marks

- (i) Question marks end all direct questions. This includes incomplete questions and statements intended as questions.

Direct Question: What is your name?

Incomplete Question: Really? When? No kidding?

Statement Intended as Question: Your name is Ali? (It shows uncertainty)

- (ii) Sentences which describe a question but do not directly ask a question are called indirect questions. They do not take a question mark.

Incorrect: He asked if he could leave early?

(Describes but does not ask a question)

Correct: He asked if he could leave early.

Correct: He asked, "May I leave early?"

(In the last one, the question is directly quoted.)

Question Marks

(iii) Use a question mark in parentheses after a point of fact to show uncertainty about it.

Example: His great-great-grandfather (Nelson Bridger?) supposedly fought in the Black Hawk War.

Example: Chaucer was born in 1343 (?).

(Note: That a question mark used this way is not an end mark. A period is still needed.)

Exclamation Point

- (i) Sometimes called the exclamation mark, the exclamation point is used at the end of a sentence or after an interjection to show strong emotion or emphasis.

Exclamatory sentence: The rain did not stop for four days!

Strong command: Be back at ten o'clock or else!

Interjection: Wow! Hurray! Alas! Damn! Shit! Bravo!

Exclamation Point

(ii) When an emphatic interjection or direct address begins a sentence, you may use an exclamation point or a comma, depending on how much you want to show the strong emotion.

Correct: No, I don't want to go there.

Correct, more emotion: No, I don't want to go there! ✓

Correct, even more emphasis: No! I don't want to go there!

Beware of overusing exclamation points. Using them too frequently makes them less meaningful.

Pauses

Pauses tell the reader to stop briefly and then continue reading.

Following are the three main pauses:

- Comma (,)
- Colon (:)
- Semicolon(;)

- Comma (,)

(i) Comma is used to separate items in a list. For example,

We need to buy milk, sugar, water and tea.

(ii) Comma is used to mark off the addressee from the addressing words. For example, Saniya, please bring a cup of tea for me.

(iii) It is used to separate linking words: However, therefore, in fact, for example etc.

Her parents wanted her to be a doctor. However, she had other plans.

This is a great book. In fact, it is one of the best that I have ever read.

Pauses

(iv) Comma is used to connect two clauses. For example.

Dependent clause + independent clause.

When Ahmad gets home from work, he watches TV for an hour.

Rahul watches TV for an hour when he gets home from work.

(v) Put a comma before coordinating conjunction that separates two independent clauses.

[for , and, nor, but , or, yet, so] (fanboys)

My brother is a doctor, and my sister is a teacher.

You can come with me, or you can go home.

(vi) Comma is used to separate parts of dates and addresses. It is also used to separate a street, city and state. For example,

I was born in Srinagar, Kashmir, in 1995.

He travelled from Jammu, India, in 2021 to Delhi.

Colon (:)

Colon is used to introduce things in a series. For example,

If you want to make a cup of tea, You need the following items: water, tea, sugar, milk etc.

My friend's restaurant specializes in four items: Biryani , Kaanti , Pizza, Shorma.

(i) Colon (:) is used to introduce information after an independent clause.

The English Marathon covered many topics: punctuation, modals, tenses, narration etc.

(ii) Colon is used to express time in figures. For example,

4 : 30 pm, 6 : 30 pm etc.

Semi-Colon (;)

(i) Semicolon is used to combine closely related sentences. For example,

I thought it was easy ; she thought it was difficult.

I thought it was easy but she thought it was difficult.

Note: we can use comma and conjunction to connect two independent clauses.

(ii) Semicolon is used to join sentences that are using conjunctive adverbs. For example,

Her parents wanted her to be a doctor; however, she had other plans.

Her parents wanted her to be a doctor. However, she had other plans.

This is an important book. In fact, it is one of the best books that I have ever read.

This is a great book; in fact, it is one of the best books that I have ever read.

Note: Both the sentences have the same meaning. If we use semicolon instead of full stop, the second clause of the sentence should begin with a lower case letter because it is now the part of the same sentence.

Semicolon makes the clause look more connected.

Apostrophe (')

Apostrophe (')

(i) An apostrophe is a punctuation mark used to create a contraction or to show possession. For Example,

It is or it has = it's

They are = they're

It is Nasir's pen.

Ahmad's book.

Singular Noun's
Plural Noun's

→ The boy's room.
→ The boys' room.

NOTE: If the plural of the word is formed by adding "s", place the apostrophe after the "s". For example

The Duchess' cook.

Boys' Hostel.

Quotation Mark (“ ”)

Quotation Mark (“ ”)

- (i) Quotation marks/inverted commas are used to mark off the actual words of a speaker. For example,
He said, “I like to help my parents.”
- (ii) Single quotation marks are used to indicate quotations/important phrases/titles within a quotation. For example,
He said, “I read the chapter ‘light’ yesterday.”
Ahmad said, “He is like a ‘wolf among the sheep’. We must remain cautious.”

A decorative, ornate frame made of a thick, gold-colored metal. It features elegant scrolls and curves, enclosing the word 'CONJUNCTION'.

CONJUNCTION

What is a Conjunction?

- A conjunction is a word that is used to connect words, phrases, clauses, or sentences.
- It helps in joining ideas to make our language smooth, logical, and less repetitive.
- In short: A conjunction is a joining word.
- Shows the relationship between the connected parts (such as addition, contrast, cause, choice, or condition).

Examples:

- Ali and Ahmad are brothers.
- She is rich, but not proud.
- I will help you if you need me.

Types of Conjunction?

1. Coordinating Conjunctions

They join two words, phrases, or independent clauses of equal importance.
They do not make one part dependent on the other.

Mnemonic: FANBOYS

- For → reason (I stayed home, for it was raining.)
- And → addition (She is kind and helpful.)
- Nor → negative addition (He cannot sing, nor can he dance.)
- But → contrast (He is poor, but honest.)
- Or choice (Do you prefer tea or coffee?)
- Yet → contrast (It was raining, yet he went out.)
- So → result (It was late, so we left early.)

Types of Conjunction?

2. Subordinating Conjunctions

They join a main (independent) clause with a subordinate (dependent) clause.
They show the relationship of time, cause, condition, concession, comparison, or purpose.

Examples with Functions:

Cause/Reason: because, since, as

(She didn't go to school because she was ill.)

Time: when, while, after, before, until, as soon as (I was cooking when he arrived.)

Types of Conjunction?

Examples with Functions:

Condition: if, unless, provided that (You will succeed if you work hard.)

Contrast/Concession: although, though, even though, whereas (Although he is rich, he lives a simple life.) He lives a simple life although he is rich.

Purpose: so that, in order that, lest
(He worked hard so that he could pass.)

Comparison: as, than
(She is taller than her brother.)

Types of Conjunction?

3. Correlative Conjunctions

They always work in pairs.

They connect two balanced or parallel parts of a sentence.

Common Pairs:

Either ... or → (You can either stay home or go out.)

Neither ... nor → (Neither Ali nor Ahmed was present.)

Both ... and → (She is both intelligent and hardworking.)

Not only ... but also → (He is not only rich but also generous.)

Whether ... or → (I don't know whether he will come or not.)

A decorative, ornate frame made of a golden-yellow material, featuring elegant scrolls and curves that enclose the text.

PREPOSITION

Preposition

- A preposition is a word placed before a noun or pronoun to show its relation with another word in the sentence. It indicates direction, position, time, cause, manner, means, possession, etc.
- The word itself comes from pre (before) + position (placed).

Examples:

○ The book is on the table.

○ He came from Delhi.

○ She is waiting for you.

○ Here, on, from, for are prepositions because they connect nouns/pronouns to the rest of the sentence.

at → place
at → direction at → time

- He will return in an hour. (time)

Teach - Teaching - as noun
→ gerund.

Types of Prepositions

A. Based on Use (Function)

1. Prepositions of Place/Position (where something is) at, in, on, under, over, between, among, near, by, behind

Example: The ball is under the chair.

2. Prepositions of Direction/Movement (where something goes) to, into, onto, towards, from, out of, along, across, through

Example: She walked into the room.

Types of Prepositions

3. Prepositions of Time (when something happens) at, on, in, since, for, from, to, till, until, during, by Example: I will meet you at 6 p.m.

4. Prepositions of Cause, Reason, Purpose

because of, due to, owing to, on account of, for Example: The match was cancelled because of rain.

Types of Prepositions

5. Prepositions of Means/Instrument/Agent

by, with, through, via

Example: He was hit with a stick.

6. Prepositions of Manner/Standard/Measure by, like, according to, per, about

Example: They are paid by the hour.

Types of Prepositions

7. Prepositions of Possession/Relation of, to, with, about

Example: This is the house of my uncle.

8. Prepositions of Concession/Contrast despite, in spite of, contrary to

Example: He went out in spite of the rain.

Thank
You